KANSAS CITY, MO.

To Keep "Kansas City a Good Place in Which to Live"

The time to meet an emergency is before it happens. Conditions such as are portrayed in the daily press everywhere must not be permitted to disrupt the civic, business and industrial life of Kansas City, interfere with National Recovery and result in loss to merchants, manufacturers, workers and the City generally. Minneapolis, San Francisco, Toledo, Kohler and Cleveland all furnish lurid examples of this evil.

Kansas City has been, and must continue to be, the center of industrial peace where both business and its working community can prosper, where the spirit of American fair play can continue, and where both workers and business will be protected from exploitation.

To adequately meet the situation, a city wide organization has been formed and incorporated, known as the Kansas City Citizens Protective Council, Inc. It is comprised of the leading business men in the city, financial leaders, professional men, and citizens generally who realize that to prosper Kansas City must continue to enjoy the stable industrial conditions it has had for the past fifteen years. An Executive Committee of over one hundred has been elected, which, with appropriate sub-committees, will control the organization. An adequate fund is being raised. Expenditures will be supervised by a committee of leading citizens. The organization is now functioning.

This organization is fully in accord with the purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act. Its members subscribe to the principles of Collective Bargaining.

This organization believes in the right of self determination by workers in selecting their representatives in an orderly fashion. It is against coercion on the part of anyone.

Within the past year there has been a revival of racketeering in the labor movement, accompanied by a series of brick throwing, window breaking, stench bombs, dynamite bombs, assaults, threats and attempts on life and property. These have all been designed to force unwilling employees into some organization they did not wish to join, and to coerce business firms to recognize and deal with such organizations.

A year ago an effort was made to require that all deliveries of material to the new Court House must be made by men belonging to a recently organized and so-called "Truck Drivers Union." In this effort some of the business agents representing certain unions called a strike. To the credit of Harry Truman, the Presiding Judge of the County Court, he issued an ultimatum that, while it was recognized that the building was a union job, it could not be used to coerce the employees of Kansas City material men and trucking concerns.

The rank and file of the building trades unions, the great majority of whom are splendid citizens and not in sympathy with such tactics, forced misguided leaders to call the strike off so they could return to work.

The situation on the Auditorium, however, has been and is different. The Building Trades Council served notice that members of the various building trades would not use material delivered by so-called "nonunion" drivers. As a result, a number of firms were forced to purchase union membership cards for some of their drivers. Material was at times delivered by non-union drivers under police protection. It was then reloaded on a union truck, driven around the block at additional expense, and when thus "purged and purified" was accepted. The contractors even went so far as to refuse to buy materials from Kansas City firms unless their drivers were unionized.

For years the question of union or non-union delivery has never been raised. Union workmen on closed shop jobs were not interested in such delivery. It is a radical departure from standards of years* standing. It is part of an attempt to foist upon delivery firms and workers, an organization with which they desire to have no dealings. It is coercion plain and simple.

What makes it more aggravated is that the Auditorium is being built with money furnished by taxpayers, union, non-union and neutral. There should be no discrimination in a public building, built by public money. It is un-American, unfair and unprincipled.

Several years ago, the Chamber of Commerce induced a number of garment manufacturers to move from New York to Kansas City. The big inducement was our labor stability and freedom from strikes.

About a year ago an imported organizer was sent to Kansas City. He attempted by threats and strikes to force the employees of these plants to join his union. They appealed to the Regional Labor Board to hold an election so they could express themselves as to their choice of organization to represent them in collective bargaining with their employers. Ninety- seven per cent of them voted to be represented by their local organizations.

This expression should have settled the entire question, but it did not. Determined to coerce the employees, another and more forceful agitator from out of town has kept up harassment in spite of this expression by ballot and the desires of the employees. Stench bombs have been thrown into these plants, in their workrooms, offices, elevators and lobbies. Pickets carrying offensive banners have paraded before their places of business. Workers have been threatened at their homes, intimidated and assaulted. Several members of the union are now under indictment for these actions.

It is tactics such as these that Kansas City must not, cannot and WILL NOT tolerate.

It was felt by many that the situation was not local nor confined to the industries affected at the time. It was a situation that should not be left to small organizations. Therefore, in response to a popular demand, the Kansas City Citizens Protective Council, Inc., was organized.

Kansas City cannot countenance a complete domination of its trucking and delivery system. It does not desire a repetition here of the San Francisco, Minneapolis, Kohler, Toledo, and Cleveland affairs. It will not see its citizens who desire work terrorized and victimized, nor its business firms ruined either by Communists, racketeers, agitators or others.

THE KANSAS CITY CITIZENS PROTECTIVE COUNCIL, INC.

Arthur Hardgrave, President.

AIMS OF THE COUNCIL

The aims of the Council are as follows:

To arouse a unified public opinion to the necessity of preserving industrial and business peace in Kansas City which has so long been enjoyed by our citizenry.

To insure to every citizen the right to work without fear of coercion and brutal force being used to compel him to join organizations against his wishes.

To bring about conditions whereby in the erection of public buildings using public money raised by taxation there will be no discrimination of any kind or character against any Kansas City firm and its employees or against any individual because of non-affiliation with labor unions.

To keep labor racketeers and Communists out of Kansas City, its industrial business affairs and the ranks of labor.

To show clearly that Kansas City is for preserving the industrial peace it has enjoyed for fifteen years and that it will not tolerate either the exploitation of the workmen or business by professional agitators.

To secure the full cooperation of city, county, state and federal authorities to stop acts of destruction, violence and vandalism, to apprehend and convict the perpetrators thereof, and to keep out of Kansas City racketeers who seek to prey upon workers and business, and to eliminate Communistic agents who thrive upon industrial strife.

To create conditions which will make it possible for Kansas City firms, contractors and industries to furnish materials and supplies to buildings being constructed in Kansas City and to carry on industry and business without interference.

THE WAYS AND MEANS

The ways and means of accomplishing these aims are as follows:

Publishing in our local newspapers statements of fact revealing actual conditions in our city.

Consolidating into one mass organization the potential strength, now considered inadequate, of each class of business or industry faced with the labor racketeering element. It is believed that the mass power of such a city wide organization would be able to more readily cope with such situations.

Cooperating with and giving advice to builders, contractors, building supply people, transportation companies, moving and storage people, business houses, hotels and all other industries whose employees are sufficient in number to invite the exploitation of their employees on the part of the labor racketeers, to the end that employers will be able to continue in the management of their own businesses.

Dissemination of information and educating employers in the problems of industrial relations and the rights of employers and employees.

The proper and sane utilization of the mass power and strength, which such an organization creates automatically within itself, to accomplish all of the objectives desired.
