

September 16, 1935.

Hon. James Pendergast,
Commerce Building,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Jim:

If it suits the Colonel, I would prefer to have the conference any day except the 28th, on which date I have previously accepted an invitation to speak before the Statewide Rally of Young Democrats at Joplin. However, if for any reason, Colonel T. J. wants to have it on this date, I will gladly cancel the engagement, but should let them know as soon as convenient for us.

Everything looks fine from this end of the line. I understand on the statewide poll Colonel Bouchard received another batch of letters that were all Stark.

Please give my best regards to your Uncle T. J.

Sincerely,
LLOYD C. STARK.

P. S.

I am enclosing a rather interesting clipping. for the first time in history Jack Blanton and Tom Bodine seem to have agreed on the same man. As you know, they are usually fighting each other on any and all subjects.
